MAKING SPACE
This two-week open studio and evolving exhibition take the process of creating art outside of a studio environment and into the public realm. Helen Hamilton's practice is predominantly sculptural, often using found objects alongside made pieces. Her work explores ideas around animacy, the relationship between subject and object, and the role of objects within our mental and physical lives. Visit indexfestival.org.uk for details.

THE ART HOUSE x ARTS COUNCIL COLLECTION
An exhibition of new work by London-based sculptor Laura Yule alongside works from the Arts Council Collection, curated by Lauren Velvick. The exhibition will consider notions of domestic and home settings, where objects and architecture feature within intimate personal relationships. Through the exhibition, the artist, and works from the Arts Council Collection look at how we construct our living spaces, and how they relate to wider urban and political landscapes.
→ Launch: 31/07 17:00-21:00

ON BEAUTY: A TALK BY KEVIN TRICKETT
We all need some beauty in our lives. But what is beauty? Can beauty be defined? Or is it just a way of describing something that we like; no more than a synonym for personal taste? These are the sorts of questions Kevin Trickett, President of Wakefield Civic Society, will ask in this thought-provoking but light-hearted and, hopefully, amusing talk. Booking required, visit indexfestival.org

PLOT
Plot is a series of workshops which build on the value of allotments and garden spaces. Slowing down, taking stock of the small things, the details, changing states, seasons and experiencing the world on both the small scale and the human scale. Visitors will create a series of tiny characters that will have a permanent fixture amongst the gardens, hidden until found. Building on initial workshops, this is a celebration of Eastmoor Community Garden and the community who use it. Artist and educator John Mayson will be leading workshops with the public at the allotment garden throughout the day.
